COURSE OUTLINE

SUBJECT: Writing for the Real World

GRADE: 8

Offered: Full Year, every other day

Type of Course: Elective

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Writing for the Real World is an elective class that let's students explore writing outside of the Language & Literature classroom. The course provides opportunities to write and publish for a variety of purposes, different audiences, and in different forms and genres.

ANTICIPATED OUTCOMES:

In Writing for the Real World, students will be publishing their work for an intended audience. The pieces they choose to write, and the audiences they choose to write for, depend on their own interests. Writing may include advertisements, feature stories, children's books, photo essays, resumes, blogs, travel brochures, scripts, etc.

MATERIALS:

- notebook
- folder
- Chromebook

CRITERIA FOR ASSESSMENT:

At the end of each quarter every student will have earned a grade. This grade is the percentage of points earned out of the total number of possible points. These points are earned by the student's performance in the following areas.

- Participation/Effort
- Blog
- Final Writing Pieces
